Geranium flower (20x), captured using microscopy and digital photography. The photographer removed the microscope stage and connected a special attachment that allowed him to rotate the flower in any angle. He then inserted a fiber-optic line into a medical syringe to illuminate the flower from four angles.

— Dr. Shumel Silberman, Ramat Gan, Israel
15th Place 2005 Nikon Small World Competition